

Ripple Effect Project

Supporting self-sustainable agricultural and educational endeavors in Sub-Saharan Africa

Community Newsletter

Spring 2017

Annual Report

In 1997 Momma Dolfine opened the Korando Education Center (KEC) to help the children who became orphaned in her community. In 2007 Ripple Effect Project came along to help Dolfine with her goal. In the 2016 school year, Dolfine and Ripple Effect Project continued to provide a home for 38 students while educating 200+ primary students and sponsoring 40 high school students' education. KEC also supplies students with meals and clean water.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS IN 2016

- Secured building designs for a new school at the Korando Education Center.
- Provided another year of education for 200+ pre-school-8th grade students and sponsored 40 high school students.
- Crops continued to grow to provide food for the school as well as a source of income.
- Boys dormitory was built in accordance with the Ministry of Health.
- Secured medical insurance for the 38 students living at the center.
- 98% of REPs expenses were used to directly support the KEC.

MOVING FORWARD

- We hope to break ground on a new school at KEC this year.
- Donors can connect with a student at KEC with our new Child Sponsorship Program.
- We continue to ensure a quality education for all students at KEC.

All students at KEC come from the Kisumu, Kenya region. The school program meets all of the academic curriculum requirements of Kenya. KEC also provides more than a traditional education for its students. Dolfine and her staff create a nurturing environment for students who are abused and mistreated. The staff is knowledgeable of the needs of each student and has the ability to give real help. In public schools, a typical classroom can have up to 50 students whereas KEC has up to 20 students.

